General Remarks.

TUITION, FIVE MONTHS TERM, IN ADVANCE.

Freshman Class.....	$30 00
Sophomore "	30 00
Junior "	35 00
Senior "	35 00
Contingent Fee, in all Classes.....	5 00
Laboratory Fee, for Classes in Physical Science.....	2 00
Boarding, per week, with private families.....	3 50 to 5 00

Tuition Fees are never refunded.

Students entering within three weeks of the opening are charged for the full term.

CLUB BOARDING.

It is desired to call special attention to this kind of boarding, as it is much cheaper and just as pleasant as any other, when properly managed. Students in clubs of ten, by renting a small cottage, procuring furniture, hiring a servant and purchasing supplies as they are needed, can board themselves comfortably—expenses for rent, servant's hire, lights, washing and fuel all included—at an average through the year of from ten to twelve dollars each per month.

Should a party of four or five, as a nucleus for such a club, from any village or neighborhood, desire to board in this way, they can have their house secured by addressing Prof. A. H. Buchanan.

SUGGESTIONS TO OUR PATRONS.

If possible, every student should enter the institution the first day of the Fall Term. All new classes are organized the first of that term, and those entering later must take their chances in the classes already organized. Minors should never be left entirely to select their boarding house or course of studies; nor should they ever be allowed to open accounts in the stores. A full and regular course of study has immense advantages over all special courses.

FACILITIES.

Literary Societies, Libraries, Daily Drill by all the Professors, Practical Instruction, such as fit scholars for active usefulness rather than literary leisure, are some of the advantages here afforded. The town is eminently healthy, while the moral influences thrown around the student are of incalculable service. A daily prayer meeting, held by the theological students, is open to all the matriculants of the University. The leading men of the community are, all of them, active members of some church.

ELECTIVE COURSES.

Several courses of Elective Studies are provided for, as follows:

Selections from the Collegiate Course and Modern Languages.

Selections from the Collegiate Course and the full Theological Course.

Selections from the Collegiate Course and the full Commercial Course.

At the same time, it will be remembered that the regular course has great advantages over any other.

GRADING.

Each student is furnished with a monthly statement of his grading, signed by the Grading Clerk, J. C. Hardin, which he is expected to mail his parents or guardian.

RAILROAD FACILITIES.

Lebanon is accessible by daily trains from Nashville.

DISCIPLINE.

No code of law is used. Each student is expected to know his lessons, and behave himself like a gentleman. Those who will not do this are not wanted here.

DEGREES.

That of Bachelor of Science—conferred on students who have completed the two years Scientific Course of Study.

That of Bachelor of Arts—conferred on students who have completed the Classical Course of Study.

That of Master of Arts—conferred upon those who have received the degree of A.B., after having completed the course of Elective Studies prescribed below or their equivalents—a wide field of which is contemplated, and in lieu of part of which a degree in any one of the learned professions will be accepted.

Mental Philosophy : Hamilton, Kant, Reid, Bain, Porter, Aristotle.

Logic : Hamilton, Aristotle, Mill.

Ethics : The Bible, Seneca, Helvetius.

Evidences of Christianity : Lardner, Chalmers, Butler.

(Four of the above required.)

Mathematics : Descriptive Geometry, Analytic Geometry (Howison's), Calculus (Dif., Int. and Variations), Analytical Mechanics (Bartlett or Peirce), Astronomy (Bartlett).

Natural Science : Proficiency in some one is preferred.

Classics : Eclogues, Georgics, Arts of Poetry, Oration for Milo, Isocrates, Livy or one modern language mastered so as to speak and write it.

Examination Fee, $15.

Diploma Fee, $5.

Business College.

Faculty.

B. W. McDONNOLD, D.D., LL.D.,
THOMAS TONEY,
R. H. ANTHONY.

Three additional teachers have been engaged to assist in this school, whenever their services are needed.

COURSES OF STUDY.

The Commercial Course consists of all that is usually taught in the best business colleges, with several valuable additions.

The School of Telegraphy is a practical drill with lines and apparatus, fitting the student for business in telegraph offices.

FACILITIES.

Thousands of dollars have been spent, in the last two months, preparing for this school. Buildings have been bought specially for it. Telegraph apparatus and telegraph lines are to be ready for use by the first of September. A splendid reading-room and business library will be open to the students. The teachers are all graduates of one or more business colleges. They have all visited and examined the best business colleges of the country. They all have experience in teaching the specialties committed to them. One of them is now visiting business colleges, in the North, to extend his acquaintance with the best methods of instruction.

EXPENSES.

Commercial School Scholarship.....	$50
Telegraph School Scholarship.....	50
Both Schools.....	90
Contingent Fee.....	5

For terms of boarding, per week, etc., see remarks on page 12. A scholarship ticket entitles the student to instruction until he has accomplished the course, without regard to the length of time required.

OPENING.

This college will open the first Monday in September next. For full particulars address B. W. McDonnold.

Business College,

CUMBERLAND UNIVERSITY, LEBANON, TENNESSEE.

THE Commercial Department of this well-known Institution has been reorganized on an entirely new plan, and now presents to the young and middle-aged men of the entire country opportunities as good as can be found elsewhere. The buildings are large and commodious, and will be well furnished and suitably arranged.

The Commercial Course,

With everything found in the best Commercial Colleges of the country, and without extra charge, offers many valuable additions found no where else; such as the "Lightning Method of Calculation;" "Cause, Effect and Cancellation;" "Vocal Music," etc. Particular attention given to Penmanship.

The Commercial Department will be open the first Monday in September, 1873, and will continue to receive students at all times; but we recommend that students come, if possible, at the beginning of each session, which will be the first Mondays in January, May and September of each year.

The Telegraphic College

Will be open the 12th day of May, 1873, and will continue open every day in the year, except Sundays. There will be no vacations in this Department, and students can enter at any time.

Telegraphy offers greater inducements to young and middle-aged men, for the time, labor and money expended, than any other occupation.

Each Department

Will be under the care of competent and experienced teachers, who will give their entire time and attention to their respective Departments.

The Time Required

Is usually from eight to fourteen weeks. Some require longer time, others not so long. Much will depend on the ability, previous training and application of the student.

Tuition, in either Commercial or Telegraphic Department.....$50.00

Contingent fee..... 5.00

Board in good families from $3.00 to $4.00 per week. The student can rent an office and board himself at much less rates.

Students will receive their Diplomas whenever they master the course of study. One will not be kept back for another.

Come to Lebanon, spend the Summer, and learn Telegraphy. It is a healthy and pleasant place.

Students prepared to take charge of an office at once.

Send to B. W. McDonnold, D.D., LL.D., President, for particulars and College Journal.

REV. THOMAS TONEY,

BUSINESS MANAGER.

Engineering School.

Course of Study.

JUNIOR YEAR.

FIRST SESSION.

Algebra (Todhunter or Bourdon).
Geometry (Chauvenet).
Descriptive Geometry (Warren).
Road Engineering.
Elementary Physics (Atkinson's Ganot).

SECOND SESSION.

Plane and Spherical Trigonometry (Chauvenet).
Land Surveying (Gillespie).
Shades, Shadows and Perspective (Warren).
Analytic Geometry (Howison).
Field Engineering (Henck).

SENIOR YEAR.

FIRST SESSION.

Differential and Integral Calculus (Olney).
Mechanics (Coxe's Weisbach).
Higher Surveying and Leveling (Gillespie).
Civil Engineering (Rankine).
Geology (Dana).

SECOND SESSION.

Astronomy (Norton).
Theory of Strains in Girders (Stoney, Shreve and Merrill).
Bridge Construction (Working Drawings, Models and Lectures).
Machines, (Rankine, Auchincloss).
Botany (Wood). Optional.

Drawing—Topographical, Geometrical, Mechanical, Isometrical and Architectural, with Shading and Tinting—throughout the course.

Field Work—Adjustment and use of Surveying Instruments, and extensive practice in sketching Topography.

The Degree of Civil Engineering will be conferred upon those who complete the course prescribed above.

Tuition, $50 per session of five months, in advance. The Engineering Course may, if desired, be carried on concurrently with the Collegiate Course, in which case the full tuition fee will amount only to the fee charged for one year in the Engineering Course alone.

Board, from $3.50 to $5.00 per week. Club boarding, from $2.50 to $3.00 per week.

Recitations, from 2 to 5 o'clock, P. M.

The first session commences September 1, 1873.

Application for admission or information should be made to Prof. A. H. Buchanan, Cumberland University, Lebanon, Tennessee.

Professor of Systematic Theology.

OBJECTS OF THE THEOLOGICAL SCHOOL.

It is the desire of those in charge of the Theological Department to contribute, as far as they may be able, towards furnishing to the Church not only an intelligent but a practical ministry. The text-books are considered practical. Practical habits are encouraged among the young men here. By preaching in vacant congregations around, and laboring in Sunday-schools in destitute neighborhoods, they make themselves useful and acquire such habits as must greatly increase their usefulness hereafter. A ministry so educated can not fail to be a blessing to the Church.

We do not believe that the highest degree of intellectual culture has any tendency to impair, but rather to improve, the spirituality of religion, when the culture is connected with practical religious subjects.

During the year past, the Instructor has devoted his whole time to the duties of his own proper department. Heretofore, since our reorganization after the war, he has been compelled to divide his time between the Theological and Literary Departments. This condition of things exists no longer. It is hoped, also, that we will be able to do something towards a practical organization of the Murdoch Professorship before the commencement of the next Collegiate year.

We hope that in a year or two we will succeed in effecting a still further enlargement of the operations of this department of the institution. It is very evident that such instruction as is imparted in a good Theological School is becoming more necessary every year. The congregations of the Church, for whose prosperity we labor, demand the services of well instructed men. We earnestly desire to perform our part in supplying this demand. Will our friends help us? With forty or fifty young men preparing for the ministry, the full organization and vigorous support of the Theological Department ought to be considered an absolute necessity. Will not the Church accept this earnest statement practically? We must have a ministry of a higher order of education. Can we prepare such a ministry, as far as human agency is capable of preparing it, as economically and efficiently in any other way, as in a good Theological School? All experience and observation say that we can not. Will not the Church, then, patronize and with its money aid the Theological School?

The Trustees, considering it desirable, and in accordance with the feelings and wishes of the Church, that this department should have distinct buildings and surroundings of its own, have caused to be settled upon it by decree of the Chancery Court a fee simple title to fifty acres of ground, and the spacious buildings now occupied by this as well as by the Literary Department. This property cost eighteen thousand dollars, about nine thousand of which remained unpaid. This latter sum, out of the $12,000 for which the lots donated by Judge Ewing, near the city of Chicago, were recently sold was applied to the payment of said debt, and the title fixed as before stated.

By this disposition of unproductive property in a distant city, the institution, in all its departments, is cleared of debt, and the Theological Department has a perpetual home, with three thousand dollars added to its productive funds, safely invested.

This department has, therefore, a College building and grounds worth twenty thousand dollars, Camp Blake and one of the best theological libraries in the Southwest. May we not say then to the Church that the Theological School is now on something like a firm foundation? It wants additional endowment for the support of instruction. It will then be prepared for the fulfilment of its great mission.

COURSE OF STUDIES.

Camp Blake.

This Institution was organized in September, 1868, and has been in successful operation ever since.

TERMS.

1. A contingent fee of $10 is required to be paid in advance, not to be refunded in any case.

2. No one is admitted until he has furnished evidence that he is a candidate for the Ministry, in the care of some Presbytery in the Cumberland Presbyterian Church.

3. A room is furnished with a bunk, chairs and a table. The student furnishes his own wood, washing, lights, bedding and whatever else he may need. Of course no charge is made for board. All eat at the same table, where every appliance is provided.

4. Candidates for the Ministry pay no tuition; but before entering College each one is required to pay five dollars contingent tax.

The whole expenses of boarding in Camp Blake, including both contingent taxes and books, per session, need not exceed fifty dollars, and by very rigid economy may be considerably less.

CONTRIBUTIONS.

Money and provisions for Camp Blake may be sent to Hon. Nathan Green, Lebanon, Tennessee.

FREE TUITION.

Candidates for the Ministry are taught gratuitously. This favor is extended on the faith of the Church, and with the full expectation that the Institution will be furnished with money enough to enable it to continue this policy. In obedience to a heavy pressure from the churches, the Trustees have required a refunding bond, binding candidates to refund to the Institution or to the Church all the tuition or boarding given them, in case they should ever abandon, voluntarily, the ministry as a calling.

COURSE OF STUDY.

Junior Class.—Caruthers's History of a Law Suit; Stephens's Pleading; Kent's Commentaries; Greenleaf's Evidence, 1st Vol.

Senior Class.—Barton's Suit in Equity; Story's Equity Jurisprudence; Bishop's Criminal Law; Parsons on Contracts.

This course is very imperfect; but is so necessarily. It is impossible to become a good lawyer during the short time young men can be induced to remain in any school of Law.

All that can be done is to give them a decent preparation for a license, and fit them respectably for beginning the practice.

COURSE CONDENSED.

After much study and reflection, the Faculty and Trustees have determined to condense the course so as to enable gentlemen to be graduated in two sessions of five months each.

It will be seen that we have now only two classes, the Junior and the Senior. Many books of importance are or course left out, and those only retained which are deemed indispensable. Yet those which are in the course, if well studied and understood, will make any man a good lawyer. Perhaps it may be truly said that law books, more than any others, are filled with repetitions, the principles of law being comparatively few.

The fifteen volumes which are now embraced in the course discuss every subject of importance known to the law. The student, therefore, who is attentive will find himself at the end of the ten months master of sufficient elements on every legal topic to enable him to enter upon his professional life.

We frankly state here the reasons which have induced us to make the change:

1. Most of the Law Schools in the United States have shortened the time thus within which students may be graduated.

2. But few young men who have attended the school since the war have been able to remain longer than ten months. Nearly three-fourths of those who have entered our Junior Class upon the old system of fifteen months have fallen off before reaching the Senior Class.

3. The condition of the country since the late civil war seems to demand that there should be a change. Our young men, for the most part, are limited in their means. They are really not able to remain here on expenses longer than is absolutely necessary. And, further, their exigencies require that they should go to work for themselves as soon as possible.

This they will do whether we graduate them or not. They will apply to the Judges, who will feel bound to license them after very poor preparation and a few months of unsatisfactory reading in some law-office. We have thought it better that we should abridge our course somewhat, and thus reduce the time and lessen the expenses, so as to induce more of them to enter the school, where they can be thoroughly drilled in the practice and instructed in the elements at least for ten months.

4. As has been said heretofore, all we can do is to prepare the student for a license. It may be objected that the ten months is too short even for that. We may be told that it once required an apprenticeship of seven years before our English ancestors would allow the attorney to engage in the practice. That may have been necessary then, but is not now. Anciently the law was diffused through many books, most of which were reports. Years of labor and observation in the office and in the Courts were necessary to give the beginners any proper notion of the law itself and the practice.

But now Blackstone, Kent, Story, Greenleaf and others have collected the principles of jurisprudence from the vast number of reports, and have arranged, digested and reduced them to system, and have brought them within a small compass. They have done the work for us which the British student formerly had to do himself.

It is certainly, therefore, not hazarding too much to say that the modern diligent student can accomplish more in one year than the ancient student could in seven, just as the modern railroad train can travel faster in one day than our forefathers could have gone with their road wagons in ten days.

We would be glad if we could induce young men to remain at the School two years or longer, but we can not.

RESIDENT GRADUATES.

Gentlemen who may pass through our course and receive the degree of Bachelor of Laws are invited to remain another year free of charge.

LICENSE TO PRACTISE.

The Faculty of this Law School are authorized by law to confer license to practise. This will be given to all who receive diplomas, without any extra fee.

MOOT COURTS.

Every student is drilled in the forms of pleading and practice. Moot Courts are established as part of the regular course. In these all are required to participate. Cases are made out and given to the disputants, who are required to bring suit in whatever court the matter may be cognizable. The Professors sit as judges and the students, by turn, act as jurors, clerks and sheriffs. The causes are argued—often with great cogency and interest—and the jury charged, the verdict rendered and judgments entered exactly as in real courts.

LECTURES.

We do not teach by lectures. A lesson is assigned, and each student is examined every day upon the text. The law is in the text books, and it is better to require the student to tell what it is than for the Professor to announce it in a lecture. Still, all difficulties are removed and dark passages explained in the course of recitation.

WHAT WE TEACH.

We teach the Common Law and Equity, applicable alike in all the States. The student who is educated here may therefore practise anywhere in the United States.

LITERARY QUALIFICATIONS.

No knowledge of Latin or Greek is required, nor any other special literary qualification, in order to enter the Law School.

TUITION FEE, ETC.

The fees per session of five months are as follows: tuition, $60.00; contingent, $5.00—to be paid in advance; diploma fee, $5.00.

BOOKS.

Students furnish their own books, which can be bought cheaper in Lebanon than elsewhere. The books in the Junior course can be obtained in Lebanon for forty-one dollars. The books in the Senior course will cost forty-five dollars.

SESSIONS.

There are two sessions. The Fall Session begins on the first Monday in September next and ends January 15th, 1874. The Spring Session begins January 19th, and ends June 4th, 1874.

BOARDING.

Boarding in private families at from $3.50 to $5.00 per week, and in clubs much cheaper.

OUR HISTORY AND PROSPECTS.

The Lebanon Law School was established in 1847 by Judge Abraham Caruthers. There were thirteen students the first term. As soon as the plan of instruction became generally known the numbers increased so rapidly that it became necessary to add another Professor, the Hon. Nathan Green. This was in 1848. Shortly after, the Hon. E. L. Ridley was added.

Under the guidance of these distinguished men, all of whom now rest from their labors, the institution prospered to a degree never equaled in the United States during so short an interval. The year before the war the number of students was more than two hundred.

Probably more than a thousand young men have pursued their legal studies here. Many fell during the late civil war. But many survived, and they are rapidly taking the high places of public trust throughout the land. Numbers of them are today Chancellors, Judges and Congressmen, and many are standing at the head of their profession all over the country. There is scarcely a town in the contiguous States that has not a representative from the Lebanon Law School. While there may be a few who do us no particular honor, yet we point with pride to the great mass of those who have been educated here. They are, to a great extent now, and as the years and their numbers increase, will continue to be, controlling minds in the country. It is hoped the School will not lose its usefulness under the present management. It is now on a good footing, with better prospects than at any time since the war. The students who now attend are noted for their good habits and earnest application. They come from the many different States, and form themselves into a band of brothers, each vying with the other in diligence and zeal. Being in classes together, they constitute a powerful stimulus to one another while here. When they leave and settle in the various parts of the country, each has scores of professional brethren whose future intercourse and correspondence in business may be highly beneficial and remunerative.

The town of Lebanon is famous for its morality, healthfulness and sociable hospitality. Students board in the best families, and are favorites with the citizens.

In view of the advantages offered here, we think we may safely invite gentlemen who have our profession in view to visit the Lebanon Law School.

Address of the Trustees.

In the fall of 1842, the Commissioners appointed by the General Assembly to select a place to which "Cumberland College" should be removed from Princeton, Kentucky, decided in favor of Lebanon, Tennessee. Funds were raised by the citizens to procure a site and erect necessary buildings. The College went into operation the next year, under the presidency of the venerable and distinguished Dr. F. R. Cossitt, and was chartered by the Legislature, with the name of "Cumberland University." Some progress was made in a permanent endowment under the efficient agency of Rev. J. M. McMurtry, and large and expensive additions were made to the buildings before the war. The close of the terrible conflict of arms between the sections, in 1865, found the endowment mostly lost, the spacious buildings in ashes, and a considerable debt unpaid. In this gloomy state of things, the question of surrender or an effort to resuscitate was anxiously considered. The friends here and elsewhere rebuked the former, and with commendable unanimity and zeal adopted the latter course. A handsome subscription was obtained for rebuilding, but enough could not be realized to authorize the commencement of the work; but a large unfinished building and fifty acres of ground were bought near the town, and prepared at considerable expense for the use of all the departments, except the Law, which provides for itself by renting. The title to this valuable property, as elsewhere stated, has been, by decree of the Chancery Court, on the application of the Trustees, vested in the Theological Department forever for nine thousand dollars (one-half of its cost) taken out of the proceeds of the sale of some lots near Chicago, donated by Judge Ewing many years ago, to that Department. This sum disencumbered the property and made the title clear.

By this arrangement, together with the appropriation of such other means as could be made available, the institution is now entirely out of debt, and holds the valuable property above described, and the original college site, together with the home of the young preachers, called "Camp Blake," of the value of $5,000, unincumbered. No doubt can now exist, if there ever was any entertained, that this time-honored institution is again on a firm foundation, and will continue for all future time, as it has been in the past, a blessing to the church by which it was founded, as well as the cause of education generally.

Nothing is now wanting to make this university more prosperous than it ever was, but a fund sufficient to erect such buildings for the Collegiate Department, on the old site, as the times and its former fame require, and a permanent, general, or professorship endowment, sufficient to make the salaries of able Professors secure. A confident hope is indulged that these desirable objects will soon be accomplished by the energetic co-operation of the friends of the enterprise. The laudable spirit evinced to provide for the future by the Ball endowment scheme, gives assurance that the necessary intermediate support will be given. That can afford but little aid until the ten years expire.

The Trustees call upon the thousands of alumni sent out annually for the last thirty years, all over the land, to rally to the support of their Alma Mater. Very many of them occupy high and influential positions in Church, State and Literature. They are Presidents and Professors in Colleges, ornaments of the Pulpit, Judges on the Bench and law-makers in the halls of Congress and Legislatures. If they can not give money they can send students. Either will give strength. As in the past so in the future, we will have in every department able and faithful Professors. Send us the students, and they shall be well taught in all the branches of learning necessary to qualify them to make useful and successful members of society, in all the occupations of life. They will be here in a healthy location, where but few temptations to crime, extravagance or idleness are presented, and in a community where religion and morality predominate.
